LOCALS WIN 5-4 AT EMINENCE; TO PLAY IRVINE NEXT

West Liberty's Bluegrass League baseball team batted Paul Perry for 11 hits and played keen defensive ball behind the six-hit pitching of "Big Steve" Hamilton to win an exhibition game 5 to 4 from the touted Eminence team at Eminence last Sunday.

Played as an exhibition game to keep in shape, last Sunday's affair at Eminence could have been a preview of this Sunday's game. The West Liberty team will battle Irvine at Beattyville Sunday and the winner will advance to the league playoffs.

Winner of the West Liberty-Irvine game will meet Eminence after the opening game in the bottom end of the double-header to get the playoffs underway. Owingville and Harrodsburg, respective winners in the Eastern and Western divisions of the league, already have started their two-best-of-three series. Harrodsburg topped Owingville 15 to 1 in the opening game.

Paul Haney led the West Liberty attack at Eminence Sunday with two doubles in three official tries. Merle Nickell, Harold Hammond and Walter Brown each batted out two hits also for West Liberty.

Catcher Hall and third baseman Siskhorn each garnered two safeties to pace the Eminence team.

A TALE OF TWO BROTHERS

The recent death of Ernest Shannon, of Louisa, recalls my acquaintance, years ago, with one of the great preachers of the country. This man was the late Dr. Frederick F. Shannon, brother of Ernest, who from a printer's devil on The Big Sandy News at Louisa rose to the pulpit of Chicago's great Central Church and to become rated by the old Literary Digest as one of the 10 greatest preachers in America.

A precocious youngster whose reading had been confined to Young Wild West and some of the other so-called "trash" of the day, young Shannon was given copies of YOUNG SHANNON'S PROGRESS and LAST DAYS OF POMPEII by the late Milton F. Conley, editor of the Louisa newspaper. After that, the boy read everything he and Mr. Conley could find. He was on his way, and every summer, Dr. Shannon would return to the old home town, and on the one occasion I "covered" an impromptu talk he made at a gathering there. He not only had the soul of a poet; he also had the gift of poetic prose.

I was at the impressionable age, and I've never forgotten Dr. Shannon, and his Alger-like story, a story he later agreed I could write—but never did. But what impressed me most was this: The contrast between the two brothers—Ernest, tall, heavy and (Continued on page four)

Morgan Homes and Roads Are Modern But Her People Are Friendly as Ever, Woman, 88, Finds on Visit Here

Hills and Creeks Are the Same and Beauty Remains

(Editor's Note—Mrs. Mary Jane Robison of Missouri, now 88, returned to Morgan last week and visited her former homes on Straight Creek and Pleasant Run. This very descriptive story by Mrs. Robison, a Morgan resident who has been away 27 years, serves to remind us again of our Morgan county heritage, our beautiful countryside, good citizens and our new conveniences.)

By MARY J. ROBISON

Last Friday as we drove around the hill road overlooking West Liberty, I recalled the time when it was a day's journey to West Liberty and back, from Pleasant Run, where we lived. In those days, almost any point could be reached by making a fine turn of the hill, but we always went to the county seat on horseback or in a wagon, because it was all of eight miles.

As we drove through the streets of this busy little town, a good many things passed through my mind and I wondered if the people who live here realize how great are the changes that have taken place in the last 30 years in Morgan county. When I went down to visit my grandson, Elmo Lewis, we drove over a fine surfaced road to his very door. When his wife, Hazel, started supper, she turned on the gas on her nice white stove, and cooked up as fine a mess of victuals as I've ever eaten, while the refrigerator hummed away, making ice and cooling the milk and butter. Hazel cooked supper in little more than an hour than it took me to kindle a fire in the cook stove in the old days. I remembered how we used to hang milk and butter in the well to keep it cool, and how we'd walk a quarter of a mile to the sulphur spring to get us a cold drink before we went to bed.

In those days we not only had to poke wood into the stove, we sometimes had to cut the wood as well, when the men folk were out of pocket, and they usually were. Hazel's kitchen is painted blue, with pretty blue tile half way to the wall. I papered my walls with catalogue leaves or newspapers, using a mixture of flour and water for paste. My ever-ready thought was, I was stylish when I ordered me some wallpaper out of the wish book, all over pink posies looped with blue ribbon. What a time I had getting that paper on the wall! My daughter and I finally got it up, though I had to cut the ceiling paper in small pieces before we could hang it.

My sister, Martha Caskey, who used to live on Long Branch, wove me a carpet with rags that I had cut and tacked and I pieced her a worsted crazy quilt for doing it. I took pride, as she was a new neighbor moved in from down below, who needed a cook stove. I had bought me a new cook stove and had the old one to spare. The neighbor had a dresser that she wanted to swap and our only problem was how to get the trade made, as she was down the road and I was up the road and there was a mile between. I told her I would fix that, and I did. I harnessed old Dock and hitched him to the sled. I riddled the stove on the sled and lit out toward the hill. I made it down the creek to the neighbor all right, unloaded the stove, hoisted the dresser on the sled and got home, jolting over the rocks, without even breaking the glass. The dresser looked grand in the parlor, along with the tall organ, the stand table, the new carpet and brought-on wallpaper. I crocheted a scarf to go on it out of coarse white thread.

We knew how to make out in those days, and it pleases me to see this younger generation still clinging to many of the old ways, even in these days of modern conveniences. Elmo has a comfortable home, with hard wood floors and electricity, and yet his wife, Hazel, had rows of green beans and tomatoes and corn and up for winter, and when I went to bed I slept under a pieced quilt, wedding ring quilt. It made me happy to see that quilt piecing is not a lost art in this good country, and that women's hands still know how to fashion the evidences of our fine American heritage.

It has been a wonderful experience for me to be back in Morgan and to see old friends again after 27 years. I spent an hour with Cynthia Collins, a friend and neighbor of my young years, and we made the past live again in that visit. She is now 92 years of age, a sweet and lovely lady who loves the Lord and her fellow men. I spent a day and a night with an old and loved friend, Maggie McClure, wife of Dr. Math McClure, at the home of her daughter, Katherine Amx, on Grassy Creek. Dr. Math and Maggie came to Yocum, where he doctored, and endeared themselves to us while they stayed there. Maggie and I talked constantly during my visit, with her, reminiscing over old times far into the night. Maggie gave me a cake of her own home made soap, which I am taking home with me to wash my hands with. It is something I shall treasure.

Lula Jackson gave me seed of old fashioned Muscadines, not tied up in a square of calico as in olden times, but in a square of clear plastic. I am taking a bit of Kentucky back to Missouri with me.

A highlight of my visit was a trip to Straight Creek where my father lived when I was a child. Here too great changes had taken place. The hills were the same, but the roads were as good as any we found any place and the people are just as friendly and hospitable as they were in the days when I lived in Morgan county.

The old well still stands at my father's old place, which is now the Henry McClure place, and the little branch runs back of the house, though it is dry now. I have often washed my face and hands in that little branch on a cold morning when I was a child. At Uncle Anderson Day's old place, the ceiling is still painted blue, as I remembered it, and the hills and creek still look the same.

I wish I might tell you about all of the wonderful people I have visited and seen, and the happy time I've had even though I came in a wheel chair. It detracted nothing from my enjoyment, for every moment was filled with pleasure. I have loved the big bowls of beans cooked with side meat, the stands of honey, the sugar cured ham in red gravy that tasted better than any ham I've tasted since I left this place. I had been a little daunt about my food, but now I have a wonderful appetite and sleep like a baby. The mountain air and the sweet sulphur water made me feel like new.

My visit to dear ones at Yocum, to my cousin, Pearl Elliott at West Liberty, my nieces, Lula Jackson and Mary Cecil at Grassy Creek, Vergie and Ollie Sergeant at Blaze, Lanta and Milford Whitt at Wrigley and so many others was wonderful.

Yes, there are many changes that have taken place in Kentucky, but the good things remain, the fine, friendly spirit, the loving, forgiving attitude that I remember, the feeling of fellowship and brotherly love that is stronger in Kentucky and particularly in Morgan county than anywhere else on earth.

Modern conveniences have come to the hills, but the beauty still remains, and eighty-eight years old, and I have seen much that is good and beautiful. I take away with me the picture of fine modern roads, grand schools, the faces of beloved friends, that will be a joy to me for the remainder of my days. And I shall carry in my heart the memory of hill country where dusk falls softly and peace is eternal.

Mrs. Helton emphasized the part climate plays in molding the personalities of a country, saying that due to the warm, languid atmosphere of both Hawaii and Italy, people living in these places are friendly and fun-loving, while the rigorous damp weather in Britain made Britons more austere and conservative. She displayed articles of cutwork linen, handmade lace, and silk typical of these places.

A number of gifts were brought to the meeting to be given to Darlene Whitt, honoring her birthday. The gifts included clothing, jewelry, a home permanent and money. She leaves soon to continue her schooling at the Danville school for the deaf.

KENTUCKY STEPS AHEAD IT SHOULD NOT TURN BACK

(Floyd County Times)

The primary election campaign, now belonging to history, although it still holds a prominent spot in current discussions, most Kentuckians will agree that Henry Ward and the last two state administrations have done an outstanding job in developing state parks.

Development of these parks, which involves careful planning and able administration, has resulted in a boom in the tourist business for Kentucky in the last seven years, with four million persons attracted to these vacation spots of the state during last year alone. The parks, highly modernized, combining the idyllic with man-made facilities which take every advantage of beautiful nature, are now said to bring into Kentucky half a billion dollars a year.

Kentucky only last week was reminded in most striking fashion of this great economic asset when The Saturday Evening Post told the state's parks story with its article, "Kentucky Strikes It Rich." Seven full-color photographs illustrate the article which traces the history of state parks from 1948 when fewer than 500,000 persons a year were drawn to the state by these attractions to 1954 when the total jumped to 4,000,000.

Henry Ward, the Commissioner of Conservation who must be credited with this achievement worthy of national attention and noteworthy enough to gain prominent display in a magazine so highly respected as The Saturday Evening Post, is not the indispensable man. There are others who can continue his work, now that it has been started so well. Whoever is elected Governor will in all probability have a new man for Ward's post, and it is pretty certain that the Paducah man has no desire to continue his work with a new administration.

The important thing each of the candidates for Governor should make certain of is this: that the state parks system that is now bringing into Kentucky more than four million visitors and half a billion dollars annually is not destroyed or even damaged by an executive act to satisfy a few to the harm of the many.

We should like to have assurance from both Mr. Chandler and Mr. Denney that this thing that has been a building over the years will be permitted to stand on its present foundations, and that the state will continue to operate the business.

Great people are not affected by each puff of wind that blows ill. Like great ships, they sail serenely on—in a calm sea or a great tempest.—George Washington.

Now that Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has been so lavish in his praise of the farmers from Russia, we wish he would speak a kind word once in a while about our American farmers.—Lexington Herald.

One good use for that surplus cotton that Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has on his hands might be to sell it back to the farmers so they can stop up their ears when he starts to tell them how declining prices are for their benefit.—Lexington Herald.

build, a marked business success; Dr. Shannon, short, slight, almost boyish, his success in things not material worn as a halo—and Ernest Shannon's hero-worship of this brother of his, a thing that, never put into word, could actually be felt.—Floyd County Times.

BEAR PAW FOR ARTHRITIS

Johnny Bailey of Caney and Buddy Benton of Cannel City went over on the John Prater Fork of Vance Fork some time ago and gathered some Bear Paw for medicine for arthritis. This is found growing on the Bill Griffith farm now owned by Ed Holbrook. There is about a half acre of it in a field or second growth woodland on the left side of the branch as you travel up the branch. No one lives in this vicinity now and the leaves of the plant are very much like a bear paw. No one so far has ever found this identical plant anywhere else, and Johnny Bailey remembered where it grew when he was a boy. He says that Buddy Benton is getting better since he is using it. Johnny was in town Tuesday and vouches for the accuracy of the story.

IN 'OL MORGAN

By Atty. H. C. Allen

Charleston, W. Va.

Do you really know what 'ol Morgan means? Unless for years you're away from Lexington, you don't. The very name fills the heart full of thrills. Far more precious than gold—there's glory in her hills. Where the heart beats faster and the moments can't wait. For the absent return to her home welcome gait. Not a place on earth can you find more joy. Than return to the scenes where you played as a boy. Though neighbors and friends once happy and gay. You find some absent, some wrinkled and gray. But with all the sadness mingled like this,

'Ol Morgan will bless you with heavenly bliss.

Mr. and Mrs. Bronson Steele of Ashland were in town Tuesday. Mr. Steele represents the Banker Life Insurance Company. He met Mrs. Steele at a Halcyon party in Ashland in 1926 and they were married in 1929. She says since they married he talks almost continually of Morgan county.

TOOK BIKE AND MILK COW TO UK IN 1902

In 1902 Smith Elam, son of Leander Elam who lived on Licking River in Morgan county near the mouth of Lacy Creek, decided to go to enroll in the University of Kentucky. He rode a bicycle to Lexington and bought a lot of far from the University and built a three-room house on it. The building still stands on Rose street. He and another student lived in the house and attended college.

After he had been there six months his father wrote him a letter and told him he was driving some cows to Mt. Sterling to sell and that he would bring "Strawberry," one of the best cows, to Mt. Sterling and he could have her to keep him in milk. Smith rode his bicycle from Lexington to Mt. Sterling and got the cow and led her and the bicycle back to Lexington. After keeping her for sometime, he killed her for a beef.

Later he graduated from the University and taught school. He saved his money and made a tour of Europe, the Holy Land and Greece. At Paris, France, he climbed the Eiffel Tower and when near the top he spied a beautiful lady whom he thought to be a French Dame. He attempted to talk to her in the few words of French he had learned, and she tried to talk to him in a few words of French she had learned. Both being Americans and thinking the other to be French. Very soon Smith spoke out in good English and she answered in the same. Laughing at each other, they found out both were from Kentucky.

Mr. Elam was county superintendent of schools of Magoffin county. Several years ago he went to Lexington where he now owns a good deal of real estate. For several years he has been preparing a book on "Kentucky—Through Thick and Thin," which will be published very soon.

It was a great pleasure to have him stop at the Courier office last Saturday on his way to the Elam reunion.

Situations that Cause Attendance Problems

(No. 5 of a Series)

Children must be taught to be successful; they must be encouraged to work and strive for success. In order to provide a desirable learning situation, adequate facilities for helping our children get the most out of their school work. Let's recognize the existence of poor learning situations and work to correct them. It's every one's responsibility.

Children who have failed in school and become retarded or want to drop out of school are a responsibility of everyone, and a terrific responsibility rests upon the teacher in the promotion of children from one grade to another. Knowing when to retard and when to promote because of age or other factors is a problem of prime consideration.

Most children have at least average mental ability. Lack of incentive rather than lack of capacity to learn seems to be the determining factor in most cases. Classroom must be made attractive and meaningful in order to challenge the pupil to exercise his full mental capacity. In order to provide a desirable learning situation, adequate facilities for helping our children get the most out of their school work. Let's recognize the existence of poor learning situations and work to correct them. It's every one's responsibility.

The child who is faced with a school situation which is far beyond what he is able to achieve and simply runs away from it. In many instances this is a real problem; however, it is one that can be prevented if we understand its cause. To build self-confidence, attempt a task that can be completed, then finish it. If we dodge a seemingly difficult task one time, we will tend to run away at every opportunity. Completion of a task means we have become successful in that task. Success tends to repeat itself. We as parents and teachers should insist upon completion of any job the child attempts, no matter how small or insignificant it may be. The habits of thoroughness must be learned early in life if it is to be a practiced trait in our personality.

It is a well-known fact that learning is based upon past experience; that we learn the simple, concrete things before advancing to the complex, more abstract learnings. Parents and teachers can do much toward giving a child a good background for future learning. Lack of an adequate background is the cause of many failures, due to the child not being able to understand what is being discussed. A competent teacher will endeavor to clarify the material in such a way that all the pupils will be able to grasp the information being taught. An early lesson well learned gives basis for acquiring new knowledge.

FISHING NEWS

Bernard Whitt, Fishing Editor

Ed Gevedon caught a bass that weighed 10 lbs. at Kelly Whitt's pond. He brought it to West Liberty and put it in a refrigerator at the REA and it weighed 4½ pounds. The fish was caught on a cane pole.

Herbert Hammond helped eat part of a 40 pound fish. He would not tell who caught the fish but said the man lived near the mouth of White Oak.

Gene Kivett, G. E. salesman of Lexington, went hunting and did not kill anything. At the same time Ed Gevedon went hunting and went to sleep under a hickory tree. When he awoke a squirrel was in the tree. He killed two and went back to sleep.

John Stamper said Wednesday Jim Clay caught a 24½ pound catfish in Red River. John did not see the fish but saw Boone Townsend and Lacy Jackson who said they saw Jim Clay who caught the fish. They also said caught a 16 pound Buffalo sucker.

Bonds Abandoned For Improvement of Parks

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 4.—The State abandoned a proposed $3,600,000 bond issue to finance new State park facilities because of uncertainty of future governmental policies.

Action was taken, Governor Wetherby said, after investment houses advised they would not buy the bonds because of this factor.

"In light of the uncertainty as to future policies, it is apparent we could not find a market for such revenue bonds, and for that reason the Property and Building Commission has had to decide that the project cannot be carried out now," the Governor added.

If you are a farmer, we can give to you a single payment Farmer's Plan, payable in 3, 6, 9 or 12 months when your tobacco crop is sold.

If you have a monthly income, we can offer you a 12, 15 or 18 months plan to pay monthly. Or we can give you a single payment plan to be paid when an estate has to be sold for funeral bills of old age pensioners.

Many are now using this plan and find it to be helpful and non-burdensome. In case of death of persons liable for the funeral expense, the balance is automatically paid up and leaves no burdens on those of the family that remain.

Elmer Anderson, attendance supervisor, and I left West Liberty Wednesday morning for Vance Fork school. In town we saw a boy, 12, not in school. He promised he would go to school at Spaw Creek. After our visit at Vance Fork we came back to Spaw Creek and found he had not been at school.

At Vance Fork there were 17 pupils. Mr. Anderson took charge to teach. Mr. Johnson and I visited the home of Chas. Lewis who has a girl, age 6, in school. At Mrs. Gertie Tussey's she said her daughter, Shirley, was doing fine and they had a fine teacher. She has a son, Homer, at Franklin, Ohio, who is a foreman, and a daughter, Mary Lou Middleton at Franklin, Ohio. Both received NYA training at West Liberty during the war. As we left she repeated that they had a real good teacher.

We next visited Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Vance who live at the John Morris place. Susie Coffee was visiting them. She came to school to see at Vance Fork when she was a small girl. They have nine children. One son Rexford lives at West Liberty and works on REA. They have three in school at Vance Fork and repeated that they had a good teacher and would like to have a bigger school and to keep their teacher.

We stopped at Lee Vance's. Mr. Vance was working in tobacco. Mrs. Vance said they lived in Floyd county about 21 years and have lived at their present home 13 years. This is the old Johnny Vance place. They have two children in Vance Fork and one daughter, Dimple Lee Vance, a senior in high school at West Liberty.

We met Goebel Vance, Luther Carpenter had David Reed on a truck hauling tobacco. Goebel said they had one of the best teachers in the county and proved it by the other men.

We visited Park Lykins who has four children in Vance Fork school and one son Bobby who is a senior at West Liberty and plans to enter college next year. Park said they had a real teacher. He said his brother, Arnie Lykins, who is working at Dayton fell yesterday and was injured.

When we returned to Vance Fork Elmer appeared to have been a good teacher. The Rev. Chas. Thompson of Magoffin was there to give a Bible lesson. Susie Coffee said she was 55 and that her mother Rinda Coffee is 83.

You've often read or heard references to savings as a "nest egg" for your future. The treasury Department reminds us that china nest eggs don't grow into chickens, whereas money put into series E savings Bonds can grow for nearly twenty years. And you can count your chickens before they are hatched; the cash values for each six months are guaranteed in advance by Uncle Sam.
